Course Content

After assessing each course participant's role and the language abilities required, we create a customised study agenda, emphasising realistic role-plays in the context of the client's industry and the participant's professional role.

This bridges the gap between classroom learning and performance on the job, delivering a more effective training intervention with greater impact and more immediate application to the participant's professional life - so increasing motivation and ROI.

TJ Taylor provides courses in Communication Skills, Business English and a number of industry- and role-specific courses.

Business English courses focus on general business language and include a series of work-focused topics such as: Finance, Marketing, Human Resources, General Management, Sales, Production, Logistics, etc.

Specialised Business English courses cover such areas as: Engineering, the Pharmaceutical and Chemical Industry, Law, SAP, Banking, Insurance, Oil & Mining, Advertising, Medicine, Automotive Industries, Accounting & Finance, Aeronautics, etc.

For many clients we also create company-specific English learning materials to align the course programme to the client's business objectives and to improve the discussion and role-play activities.

Business Communication Skills in English courses can be delivered in combination with all of the areas listed above, focussing on the competencies and communication skills necessary to succeed in an international business environment.

Courses include one or several of the following communication skills: Negotiations, Presentation Skills, People and Performance Appraisals, Professional Writing, Meetings, Telephone Skills, Sales, Socialising & Networking, Delegating & Conflict Resolution, Working with Numbers, Intercultural Awareness, and Business Travel.

Course Programmes: Classroom Training

Customising the delivery structure of a course is essential for effective learning and the success of any training project. This is often neglected as most language schools offer standard, limited course options.

Defining and constructing a course structure from first principles takes into account each participant's work demands, the training objectives, the company's learning culture, and the individual's learning style and history.

Individual Courses: an individual course allows you to decide exactly what you are going to learn, which materials to use, and when. The programme of each individual course is tailor-made for the participant and is based upon a comprehensive needs analysis and a detailed diagnostic assessment at the start of the course. The duration of the course can be scheduled as a maintenance, weekly, semi-intensive or full-immersion course, even during holiday periods.

For highly-specialised needs, maximum impact and progress in the minimum amount of time, or for participants with limited time availability, individual courses are the best option.

Group Courses: small groups of 3-6 participants are a very effective and efficient way of improving general English or generic Business English competencies. These courses focus on fluency, accuracy, confidence and communication skills in English. The composition of the groups is based on a needs analysis and placement test at the start of the course. The study agenda is designed in collaboration with the members of the group.

Small group courses are a good option for participants who need to improve their general communication skills, or those with a limited budget.

Combination Courses: combination courses combine individual training sessions with group tuition. The individual lessons focus on the specific language skills needed by the individual, and the group sessions consolidate and apply new learning, and also improve fluency and interpersonal communication skills.

For participants which specific needs, a high lesson cancellation rate, or a limited budget, a combination course is a popular option.

Course Programmes: Performance Support

Coaching: providing course participants with a personal English coach is one of the most effective ways to learn and improve communication in English. Through 'learning by doing' the participant immediately applies, receives advice and guidance, and gains confidence and proficiency in their use of English while continuing with their normal work schedule. Privacy and confidentiality is assured, while offering maximum flexibility and real hands-on training.

For participants with unpredictable schedules, learning and/or application difficulties, or specialised language training needs, a coaching program is highly recommended.

Blended Learning: combining traditional face-to-face lessons with elearning exercises, virtual classrooms, and email support offers increased flexibility, value and effectiveness compared to pure classroom training. Blended learning courses can produce significant cost savings while also delivering superior results.

The main advantages for your company, and the participants, are:

Effectiveness and Productivity – optimising the training process:

- more time available in the classroom for fluency practice, consolidation and role-plays,
- 360° learning and practice of each language skill in a realistic business context,

Flexibility – the possibility to adapt learning to your work schedule and demands:

- shorter, more powerful learning sessions,
- a personalised learning curve and pace adapted to each individual's needs and abilities.

Innovation – evolution in the training process:

- powerful and insightful progress monitoring and reporting,
- stimulating high-quality interactive content and bespoke classroom role-plays.

Helpdesk and Telephone courses: the English Helpdesk provides immediate, on-demand language support by telephone or email to help participants overcome any confidence and application barriers, and to answer their questions on the correct usage and comprehension of English. The Helpdesk can also be used as a flexible post-course tool to maintain the participant's English communication abilities.

Money-Back Guarantee

We are confident about the effectiveness and quality of our training services, and so we are pleased to back all our courses with a refund guarantee.

If a participant has attended a course, followed the study agenda and made a real effort to apply and use English, but has not made progress or shown an improvement in their English communication skills, we will refund the cost of their course.
